COMMUNITY SUPPORTED AGRICULTURE (CSA)

COMMUNITY SUPPORTED AGRICULTURE (CSA) is a partnership between the farmer and the members of that CSA. Farmers sell shares of the coming season's harvest, sometimes in various sizes to accommodate different family sizes, in the late winter or early spring. Members pay up front to join the CSA, and essentially, for the products they will receive during the growing season (often late May through October).

This upfront investment helps the farmer have capital for needed seeds and supplies and helps the farmer plan how much farm produce to grow or raise. The farmer and the members share in the bounty and/or risk of the harvest. Most CSAs sell fruit and vegetables, though there are a wide range of other products that may be offered through a CSA arrangement including eggs, meats and honey. Some CSAs also offer winter shares.

FARMERS MARKETS

FARMERS' MARKETS are generally open air markets at which various farmers offer their products. They are typically open during the growing season from late May through October and offer consumers a variety of products. For the purpose of this guide, farmers' markets are generally "producer only markets", meaning they sell what they produce, not items they purchase from other suppliers.

are, as the name suggests, products that the producer specializes in. These products highlight the diversity in Chester County agriculture and the opportunities that exist for farmers. Some of these products, such as cheese and wine, are available at farmers' markets and the producers are not generally open to the public without prior arrangement. However, some of the producers are open to the public so it is best to contact the producers directly for specific information on availability.
